Meet Rahzeem Mitchell. Even in the third grade, Rahzeem's teacher recognized distinct qualities that would set him apart—his magnetic charisma, unwavering ambition, and love of community. From an early age, Rahzeem displayed a penchant for commanding the crowd, a trait cultivated by his single mother, who ensured his immersion in performance-driven pursuits would equip him for triumph over the challenges of Atlanta's east side.

His foray into performance continued to blossom during high school, where Rahzeem earned his spot as a member of the marching band and captain of the step team, Gamma Kappa Phi. Both of these encounters refined his pension for leadership and taught him confidence in the face of massive audiences. These formative experiences laid the foundation for his future success as an actor. He discovered the value of moving with impact and becoming the most memorable person in the room—key skills that would later help him overcome an often discouraging road to an impressive acting career.

Now entering adulthood, the next step in Rahzeem's journey led him from Southwest Dekalb High School to the historic HBCU, North Carolina A&T University. It began as a pursuit of a computer science degree, but later blended into the beginning steps of his professional acting career. And even though he happily completed college with his degree, a pivotal moment unfolded when Rahzeem curiously enrolled in the course 'Acting for Non-Acting Majors' just a year before graduating. His professor recognized his raw talent and encouraged him to fully prioritize his acting and use his IT work as a means to support his real passion.

After college, the Raleigh Little Theatre was Rahzeem's first big step into professional acting. After stopping in to see if they offered acting classes, he found himself landing an opportunity to feature in a local play, "Mirandy and Brother Wind". Rahzeem was constantly doing research on the industry and auditioned with Carolina Talent Agency, which marked the beginning of a fruitful future.

Uplifted by his new network of support, Rahzeem secured his first on-camera role for ESPN, portraying a high school football player, and later graced the cast of 'Almost Christmas' in 2016, showcasing his dramatic prowess as Young Walter. Over the course of a decade, Rahzeem would manage to build an impressive portfolio as a full-time actor while also managing his career in business analytics and IT, infusing a professional dimension into his fiery, creative charm.

His journey has been a tapestry woven with hard work and setbacks; success came not from handouts, but from those who saw the talent and ambition within him. Today, his versatility shines in national commercials for brands like Hasbro Toys, The Georgia Lottery, and Wells Fargo, where he portrayed a lead branch manager. He has left an indelible mark on feature films and TV shows, including HBO's "Lovecraft Country" and Marvel's "Hawkeye," sharing the screen with acclaimed actors like Jonathan Majors, Journey Smollet, Michael K. Williams, Jeremy Renner, and Hailee Steinfeld.

Rahzeem is determined in his quest to become one of the greatest actors of his time. We invite you to explore Rahzeem Mitchell's world—a world of a rising star, poised to leave an indelible mark on the realm of entertainment.

ALMOST CHRISTMAS

A dysfunctional family gathers together for their first Christmas since their mom died. Directed and written by David E. Talbert. Released November 11, 2016. Rahzeem Mitchell plays "Young Walter".

Almost Christmas was the biggest experience of my life. It felt amazing being a part of not only a positive production, but a part of a high spirited cast. Working with David E. Talbert was mind blowing. His patience and vision transcended on screen and his graceful energy became toxic and contagious. Who knew that directors would be so willing to teach the craft so openly to their cast regardless of their tenure? Mr. Danny Glover wowed me with his unexpected humor. I am honored to have had the opportunity to work with a living legend. The audition process for Almost Christmas taught me nothing is given to you in this industry. You must put in the work, and that is what I will continue to do in pursuit of my dreams.
